

With thirty Articles of Intelligence, on Topography, Agriculture, Natural History, Mechanics, Hygrometry, Domestic Economy, and other valuable Matters, from p. 63 to 116.

No. II.

- I. An Examination of Dr. Williamson's Memoir on Fascination; with a new Theory of that Phenomenon. By Dr. Malachi Foot, of New-York 113
 - II. A Catalogue of the Maritime Plants of New-York, as found at Plandome on Long-Island. By Mr. Caspar Wister Eddy, of New-York 123
 - III. Remarks on the Pamphlet of Don Armesto upon the Yellow Fever at Cadiz in 1800. By Felix Pascalis, M. D. of New-York 131
 - IV. The Substance of an extemporaneous Lecture on Medicine. By Joseph Young, M. D. of New-York 140
 - V. Recital of two Cases of Convulsions, alternating with temporary Insanity, relieved by violent Pressure over the Stomach. By Samuel Brown, M. D. of New-Orleans 145
 - VI. Fatal Case of Scurvy, supposed to have arisen from the immoderate Use of Hickory-Nuts. By Gideon C. Forsyth, Physician at Wheeling 147
 - VII. Convulsions successfully treated by large Doses of Opium. By J. W. Montross, Physician in New-York 149
- And Reviews of Swords's Edition of Assalini's Essay on the Plague, p. 154; Heriot's History of Canada and Louisiana, p. 164; Main's Directions for Transplanting and Managing young Thorn for Hedges, p. 175; Caldwell on the Yellow Fever at Philadelphia, 1805, p. 177; and Gass's Journal of the Corps of Discovery across the Continent of North-America, to the mouth of the Columbia River, by order of the American Government, in 1804—5 and 6, p. 185.*
- And twenty-one Articles of Information on the Epidemic Constitution of the American Atmosphere, Physical Geography, the Comet, the descent of Meteoric Stones, Vaccination, and other memorable Matters, Foreign and Domestic, from 190 to 232.*

With thirty Articles of Intelligence, on Topography, Agriculture, Natural History, Mechanics, Hygrometry, Domestic Economy, and other valuable Matters, from p. 63 to 116.

No. II.

- I. An Examination of Dr. Williamson's Memoir on Fascination; with a new Theory of that Phenomenon. By Dr. Malachi Foot, of New-York 113
 - II. A Catalogue of the Maritime Plants of New-York, as found at Plandome on Long-Island. By Mr. Caspar Wister Eddy, of New-York 123
 - III. Remarks on the Pamphlet of Don Armesto upon the Yellow Fever at Cadiz in 1800. By Felix Pascalis, M. D. of New-York 131
 - IV. The Substance of an extemporaneous Lecture on Medicine. By Joseph Young, M. D. of New-York 140
 - V. Recital of two Cases of Convulsions, alternating with temporary Insanity, relieved by violent Pressure over the Stomach. By Samuel Brown, M. D. of New-Orleans 145
 - VI. Fatal Case of Scurvy, supposed to have arisen from the immoderate Use of Hickory-Nuts. By Gideon C. Forsyth, Physician at Wheeling 147
 - VII. Convulsions successfully treated by large Doses of Opium. By J. W. Montross, Physician in New-York 149
- And Reviews of Swords's Edition of Assalini's Essay on the Plague, p. 154; Heriot's History of Canada and Louisiana, p. 164; Main's Directions for Transplanting and Managing young Thorn for Hedges, p. 175; Caldwell on the Yellow Fever at Philadelphia, 1805, p. 177; and Gass's Journal of the Corps of Discovery across the Continent of North-America, to the mouth of the Columbia River, by order of the American Government, in 1804—5 and 6, p. 185.*
- And twenty-one Articles of Information on the Epidemic Constitution of the American Atmosphere, Physical Geography, the Comet, the descent of Meteoric Stones, Vaccination, and other memorable Matters, Foreign and Domestic, from 190 to 232.*

CONTENTS.

ix

No. III.

- I. Remarks on the Yellow Fever and Epidemic Catarrh, as they appeared in South-Carolina, during the Summer and Autumn of 1807. By David Ramsay, M.D. &c. of Charleston p. 233
 - II. Case of the Discharge of a Pin from the Urethra. By Dr. Jesse F. Jones. 236
 - III. Observations on the Epidemic Catarrh, as it appeared in New-York in 1807: Communicated to the College of Physicians and Surgeons. By Jacob V. Brower, M. D. of New-York 244
 - IV. Account of the Lithographic Art, invented by Mr. Senefelder. By Messrs. D. B. Warden and Delasteyrie, of Paris 238
 - V. Relation of the successful Extirpation of Tumours from the Neck. By Dr. Charles Harris 246
 - VI. Usefulness of the internal Exhibition of the Sugar of Lead in several Diseases. By Thomas Ewell, M. D. of the United States Navy 249
 - VII. An Examination of certain Experiments on the Ballstown Mineral Water. By Valentine Seaman, M. D. of New-York 258
 - VIII. Remarks on Dr. Williamson's Opinions concerning the Fascination of Serpents. By William Darlington, M. D. of West-Chester, Pennsylvania 257
 - IX. A Narrative of the dreadful Sickness and Mortality of the American Prisoners on Board the British Prison Ships at New-York, during the Revolutionary War. By Captain Alexander Coffin, jun. of Nantucket, one of the Sufferers 260
 - X. Case of an extraordinary Swelling of the Abdomen, which terminated fatally. By Dr. William Miner 267
 - XI. A Description of the Epidemic Catarrh of 1807, as it appeared on Block-Island. By Dr. Aaron C. Willy, of that Place 271
- Together with Reviews of the following Publications, to wit, Memoirs of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Vol. ii. Part 2, p. 372; Woodhouse's Edition of Chaptal's Elements of Chemistry, p. 277; Bard's Compendium of Midwifery, p. 285; and Dewees's Abridgment of Baudelocque's Midwifery, p. 291.*
- And thirty-seven Articles of Intelligence on the Geographical Discoveries in North-America, and on many other useful Subjects, from p. 297 to 336.*

No. IV.

- I. Observations on the Country and Diseases near Roanoke River, North-Carolina. By Dr. Joseph Pitt p. 337
 - II. Remarks on Uterine Hæmorrhagy. By William Darlington, M. D. of West-Chester, Pennsylvania 342
 - III. Facts concerning the Weather and Diseases in the State of Ohio. By S. P. Hildreth, M. D. of Belleprè 345
 - IV. Prospectus of two intended Publications on North-American Botany. By C. Rafinesque Schmaltz, Esq. of Palermo, in Sicily 350
 - V. The Botanical Characters of some new Genera and Species of Plants discovered within the United States. By the same 256
 - VI. A Dissertation on the Temperature of the Seasons, and the Courses of the Winds upon the Atlantic Ocean, in the Northern temperate Zone, and the adjacent Countries. By Mark Leavenworth, Esq. of Paris 363
 - VII. Experiments concerning the Influence which the Nerves of the Lungs exercise in Respiration. Translated from the French of M. Dupuytren, by D. B. Warden, Esq. Secretary of the American Legation at Paris 375
- With several Reviews, viz. of J. Ewell's Medical Companion for Planters and Mariners, p. 387; the Pharmacopœia of the Massachusetts Medical Society, p. 396; Johnson's Oration before the Medical Society of South-Carolina, p. 402; Williams's Thermometrical Navigation, p. 408; and Martin's Oration before the Medical Faculty of Maryland, p. 411.*
- And thirty Articles of Intelligence on Mineralogy, Medicine, Electricity and Botany, Foreign and Domestic, from p. 415 to 444.*